Mon 21st 10am-4pm BRIDGNORTH PATCH & QUILT GROUP
 Norton Village Hall

We are a friendly group of sewers who are always happy to welcome new members. Although we have 'Bridgnorth' in our title, please note we actually meet in Norton Village Hall. Our programme combines 'sit & sew' sessions, where we take along our individual projects to work on, and workshops to learn new techniques based on patchwork and quilting. Nothing is compulsory! If you'd like more information or to come along to see what we do,

who will start ringing the bells at 10.30am

You are welcome to come and find out more about what is a regular hobby for some.

CHURCH NEWS

....The annual farming service of Lammas (loaf-mas) - celebrating the traditional start of harvest, which meant in times past there was fresh grain and flour for fresh loaves of bread - was held at Stockton Church on July 30th at 11.00am. It was attended by 18 including two "retired" farmers, but the other farmers in the area had to take advantage of the weather and get on with the combining. After the service it was good to watch the harvest being gathered in.

There will be a service of Harvest Thanksgiving at Beckbury 9.30am 13th August

WEDDINGS

Congratulations to James Millerin and Annabel Crothall who were married at Kemberton Church on 22nd July

CONDOLENCES

Condolences to the family of the late Pat Hathaway of Beckbury whose funeral service was held on July 17th at Bushbury Crematorium

...And to the family of the late Antony Lane whose ashes were interred on 18th July at Sutton Maddock Church.

PRAYER OF THE MONTH (for Lammastide)

We thank you, good Lord, for seed sown and corn grown;
for fields harvested and flour milled;
for dough mixed and bread baked;
for bread to eat and bread to share.
As we thank you for our daily bread,
remind us that man does not live by bread alone, but by your Word.
So feed us and sustain us, good Lord, with your living bread,
Jesus Christ, the bread which came down from heaven
to give life to the world;
for his name's sake AMEN

UNDERSTANDING DEMENTIA

Further extract from Sally Mitchell's book

On boiling an egg.

"I had almost given up totally on the idea of cooking again. There have been many kitchen disasters that have brought me to this point: ruined food, burnt pans. In the end it was easier to turn off the cooker completely. But then, on one of my daily trundles around the village, something caught my eye. I pass the same house every day, sometimes pausing to take photographs of the two woolly sheep that stand in the field alongside it. As I do, I often hear the muted clucks of hens. But I had never noticed the little honesty box just off the verge and the stack of freshly laid eggs beside it.

Could I remember how to boil an egg? I picked one up, perfectly shaped, and turned it around inside my palm.

At home I stood once again in front of the cooker and a memory tugged at my sleeve: a pan of bubbling away on each hob, steam filling the kitchen, scents of various home cooked dishes mingling in the air above me. Instead now the room felt quiet and still.

My iPad was upstairs and there was no point trying to consult it; by the time I arrived upstairs to retrieve it, the question would have drifted away. And so I decided to start with the cooker. Who knew if it even if it worked anymore? I turned the knob belonging to each burner. Nothing flickered or glowed orange with life until the final one-the spark of life. Perhaps a muscle memory remained-had it once been my favourite? Who knew? To be continued next month
